CHILDREN SOCIAL WELFARE & HEALTH (CSWH)

Children, Social Welfare, and Health (CSWH) cluster facilitates broad cross-cutting research topics regarding children in high-risk environments, along with issues related to social welfare, which includes gender studies and public health. This cluster focuses on the needs of vulnerable people during unfortunate conditions. Not only promoting gender mainstreaming, youth, and women empowerment, this cluster also focuses on topics regarding refugees, migration, and internally displaced persons due to disasters.
